Do you have a talent, skill, hobby, interest, or field of expertise that you would like to share with the community?

The Community Services Department at East Los Angeles College needs qualified and motivated instructors who enjoy sharing their special skills with others.

Through the Community Services Department people can learn new skills, meet new friends, develop hobbies, and participate in recreational and special interest classes. Programs include arts and crafts, music, dance, fitness, sports, educational, and career development classes. Classes are offered for nearly every age group from toddlers to seniors.

We are always searching for new instructors who have fresh ideas for new and interesting courses. If you are interested in teaching Community Services classes please fill out and submit a course proposal form and a current copy of your resume.

You may be considered to teach a new class proposed and created by you, or to teach an advertised class for which you have specific related experience and competence. The Community Services catalog is published four times a year: winter, spring, summer, and fall. Applicants are contacted as needed. All class proposals are added to a database for consideration.
